“Praying Scripture Retreat” (Ignatian Exercises)

In your own time and space meeting for spiritual direction daily

The daily rhythm of our “Praying Scripture Retreat” includes spiritual direction with Catherine, three hours in solitary prayer with Scripture, and however else God leads you – walking, napping, or star-gazing. You are welcome to stay home if it is conducive to silence or find a place for retreat. We can meet in person on the deck at my home in Greenville, SC or on Zoom from wherever you are.

The retreats are individually directed to offer an opportunity for extended silence and solitude. Catherine will make suggestions for prayer drawn from the spiritual exercises and the Ignatian tradition. Ideally retreatants will have some experience in meditative prayer, the desire to enter into prolonged silence, and sufficient self-awareness to recognize their own inward movements.

A format for your prayer will be suggested, the same format used in the Ignatian exercises all over the world since the 16th century. It will involve reading the scripture passage and then putting yourself into the story in your imagination, noticing with your senses what is going on. You will be invited to join in, to interact with those in the story, especially Jesus. Somehow, it becomes very real.
