“5-Day Summer Praying Scripture Retreat in Atlanta”

Sunday, July 5 – Friday, July 10

(Please plan to arrive between 5 and 5:30)

The daily rhythm of our “Praying Scripture Retreat” includes spiritual direction with Catherine, two to three hours in solitary prayer with Scripture, meals together in silence, ample free time for walking, reading, napping. The retreats are individually directed to offer an opportunity for extended silence and solitude. Your director will make suggestions for prayer drawn from the spiritual exercises and the Ignatian tradition. Ideally retreatants will have some experience in meditative prayer, the desire to enter into prolonged silence, and sufficient self-awareness to recognize their own inward movements. Mass will be celebrated daily; participation is at the discernment of each retreatant. The experience is very welcoming. First-timers will feel right at home.

Ignatius House Jesuit Retreat Center serves all for the greater glory of God. The ministry is based on Ignatian Spirituality and the Spiritual Exercises of Ignatius of Loyola: a journey in meditation, praying the scriptures and finding God in all things. The Center was created to provide retreat and spiritual renewal for those seeking to discover and live out God’s will in their lives.

This lovely facility, located in Sandy Springs, a suburb of Atlanta, Georgia, occupies 20 heavily wooded acres overlooking the Chattahoochee River. The expansive grounds feature indigenous trees, plants, wildlife, and a waterfall. A large deck, gazebos, and benches provide quiet resting places for meditation, introspection, and prayer. Every retreatant has a single room and bath. The meals are delicious, healthy and nourishing.
